East Grand Rapids Trustees Decline to Prosecute

SUNDAY SELLERS AT THE LAKE

Lively Session of the Distinguished Body in the School House Last Evening-A Prompter.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the village of East Grand Rapids last ght, a resolution instructing the vilge marshal to prosecute all Reed's Lake salsonicepers who keep their places of business open on Sundays and egal holidays, was indefinitely tabled. The vote was i to I against the resolu-

The sessions of the village board are heid in the east room of the school house. About 8 o'clock last night a cosmopolitan congregation of citizens filed between the upright posts that serve as a galeway to the school yard, and marched solemnly into the edifice. The delegation comprised most of the prominent citizens of East Grand Rapids. It had been cumored about town during the day that the trustees would grapple with what the prohibitionists term the "deadly rum octopus." The congrega-tion was present to see the grappling. After the delegation had filed into the school house and humped itself into scale that are intended for I year old children, it proceeded to digest the two times three are six hieroglyphics that adorned the board, and to make free translations of the "I see a dog and a rat" legends that were uncertainly tilted at angles of forty five degrees. A nice, juicy ofor of old fire copper bourbon which was wafted about the room, betokened that maying the exponents of the cum power had been doing a little appreciated lobbying. The Fun Began.

A solemn and sepulchural stillness prevailed when President Reed called the bound of trustees to order. With due ceremony permission was granted John somebody to build a sidewalk out of something or other, two inches thick. Then a borny fisted visitor with abbrevisted pantaloons and a ripe pene-trating breath, grabbed the reporter for Tus ilenain about the neck and said in a hearse whisper: Them cusses, 'cept old man Lyon, don't know no more about parliamentary law than a skunk does about 'rithmetic." DeWitt Brooks, a trustee with a peorpadeur and a striped boiled shirt, asked permission to read a few extracts from Howelf's annotated statutes. What the — does he know about the amounted statues? whispered the man with the baited breath.

Trustee Brooks read those portions of the statutes referring to the enforcement of the liquor law, and then offered a resolution, which Clerk Miller read. It was in effect that the village marshal he instructed to notify all saloonkeepers at fixed's take to discontinue the sale of liquors on Sundays and legal holidays and that the board assist him in encouraging the prosecution of all persons violating the state law.

Keep an Eye on Lyon.

The crowd did not seem to take very kindly to the resolution. He of the effulgent respiration again grabbed the reporter by the neck, bent his head over more about parliamentary law than the had of em

Trustee Brooks promptly moved that his resolution be adopted. Trustee Forrat moved to amend by laying it on the table indefinitely. Mr. Brooks stated that only Huber had paid the state licause the wanted to place himself on record as being in favor of the enforcement of the law without regard to con-

The most cherred with unrestrained enthinsmom and the individual with the "red likker" breath yelled for joy.

A Lively Tist.

A resolution was unanimously passed instructing the marshal to notify the saloon men to pay their license tax Their came the livelest row of the evening. Trustee Brooks wanted Specin Officer Smith fined for refusing to permit Mr. Brooks to enter Charley Lexifors a place on Decoration day.

limous wants to be president, trushere not marchal," exclaimed President Reed wornfully. The crowd howled and the clirion breath of the exponent of Old Man Lyon' could be heard above the maiding crowd's arrife.

Brooks goes around positing in saloon windows, continued the president. He's walked on my toes about as long as I'm going to let bim. If he ever comes around peskin in the windows of my house I'll pepper bim." And the trumpet like breath encored vigorously. Everybody talked at once at this stage of the game. Trustee Brooks intimated that anytholy who accused him of peeking into windows was an unqualiffed liar. Constable Bobn created a short-lived secention by declaring that Brooks ordered him to take his policeman's star of his vest and wear it on his cost. Brooks declared himself innocent of this between offense, and the appreciative audience grouned. Sick him, Carlo, shricked the man with lung encompassed distillery, and Carlo added a series of howls to the general confu-

Clerk Miller made a few pacifying re-narks and hinted that Mr. Brooks demarks and hinted that Mr. Heroke de-votion to the cause of temperance some-times overweighed his judgment. "But I'd fill him full of holes if he came peck-ing around my house," said Mr. Miller tiemly, and everybody howled in aspann of approval. "I'nt old man Lyon knows." more about parliamentary than the bull calicalle of am, self-consciously whispered the lacurat breath, and the troatees adjourned.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

It Can Be Obtained Only in the Denominational Colleges, The Rev. W. B. Williams of Charlotte was rather severe on the godless state university" vesterday. He read a long and carefully prepared paper on the "Comparative Influence of Secular and Christian Schools." The principal portion of the paper was devoted to a discussion of the relative merits of denominational colleges and state universities. Mr. Williams is a staunch advocate of the denominational colleges and his defense was based upon statistical information which he had prepared himself. He made no attack upon the moral character and influence of the state university, but ensisted that the preparation of the christian ministry demanded the continuation of the sectarian col-The Rev. W. B. Williams of Charlotte lege. Some of the statistics presented cannot fail to be interesting, at least. In 1892 there were 1,201 church members in the University of Michigan. There were 569 students who professed tendencies toward certain denomina tions, but were not members of any church There were 321 who made no professions, and 328 from whom no returns were made. But not withstanding that half of the students were avowed church mem hers, only twenty six graduates of the university of Michigan during the past ten years have entered the mini-try. If these had all entered congrega-tional pulpits it would not have been sufficient to fill the vacancies caused by death alone. Statistics were offered to show that at least 33 per cent of the graduates of denominational colleges became ministers. Of 1629 graduates of sectarian colleges 1.314 had become preachers. Of 3.549 graduates of the university of Michigan only 270 entered the pulpit. Similar comparisons were made between other leading colleges and universities of the country, and the same result was deduced. Mr. Williams same result was deduced. Mr. Williams declared that the state universities should be restricted solely to legitimate university work, and the denominational colleges be given opportunities to influence the susceptible minds of the younger students. He said the spirit of the state university was unfavorable toward the development of a taste for ward the development of a taste for theology and for religious matters. The Bible was entirely excluded from the course of instruction. The secular high school had supplianted the religious academy, and he did not think it pos sible for the students in a state university ever to receive the religious training and instruction that prospective students for the ministry require. At the close of his able paper, a vote of thanks was extended to him, on motion of G. D. Sanford H. Cobb.

RUM'S LATEST VICTIM.

Gustave Struensee's Body Found Floating in the Canal.

The body of Gustave Struensee was discovered floating in the west side canal at 10 o'clock yesterday by John Vander Von, an employe at the Grand Rapids Wheelborrow factory. The police were natified and Coroner Locher was summoned. The body was taken to the rooms of Stein & Hauschenberger. It was bodly decomposed and appeared to have been in the water several In one of the pockets of his clothing a carpenter's rule was found and a silver watch. On a note-book was the name () E. Struensee, Mammoth Hot Spring. Yellowstone National park, Wyoming. Ed Struensee, the harnessmaker on Waterico street, was called and identified the body as that of his brother Gustave. Edward stated that Gustave had been missing for about a week. He was working for Peter Kruse and received his pay one week ago Saturday night in Kruse's saloon. He received $11.50 and and spent $2 before he left the saloon. Kruse says he was somewhat drunk when he left his plan, but was able to take care of himself. No money was found on his person, which would point to foul play. A jury was empaneled and will inquire into the matter today.

WILL ACT AT ONCE.

Temorrow the board of managers of the Soldiers' home will meet. The important matter to come before the managers is the putting in operation the providing for the maintainance of solliers wives and widows in the home. What the plan of operation will be is not known. The managers may set aside certain rooms in the home for women or a new building may be erected, or the plan often suggested of cottages, in which an old soldier and his wife may live more secluded and more homelike than in a larger building.
